CHANDLER EGAN NEW NORTHWEST GOLF CHAMPION

Medford, Oregon, Man Defeats Paul Ford, of Seattle, at Tacoma Course by 7 Up and 6 to Play.

Tacoma tournament won the championship of 1915. Jack Neville started off with a 75 and 76 in his qualifying round last Monday and from that on every match was exactly 77-77. Paul Ford had a none too good start on Monday but was quite consistently shooting about 79 or 80 afterwards. Egan started with 77-77 on Monday, but lopped off three strokes on the first round of matches and he maintained that would be enough to attain a 72 in the first round against Neville, with a possible 70, were two strokes deducted.

In his match with Ford today Chandler Egan played only steady match golf. He was not at all nervous, which brought the match at the turn to all square. Then he opened up and flashed his most brilliant golf of the entire tournament. This brilliance won him his match, not only through the large margin of safety it brought but through the depressing effect it must have had on his youthful opponent.

To be playing but two over fours for six holes and yet to lose four of those holes was a real test to try the stoutest golfing heart that ever beat. Yet that was what the Seattle youth was up against on the concluding nine of the morning round.

Each had won three and they had tied three holes on the outward journey. Then Egan, playing his great tee shot over the tall trees to the edge of the tenth green, a shot he did not miss all week, started on his great golf. His medal score for four holes read: 3-3-3-4, while Ford's ran 4-4-4-5. They halved the fourth hole in 5 and Egan won the next with a 4. He added another before the round closed by running down a 20-footer for a 3 at the seventeenth. His lead was five holes.

Egan's Great Putting
It was Egan's putting that helped his big margin on the morning round. Repeatedly, from the very first hole, he was jumping in and out of the cup with his putts and it was at the sixteenth and the seventeenth that his reward came. At the former hole he obtained a half by sinking a putt of 15 feet.

At the latter hole he was discouraged, he declared to the writer at luncheon, but only regretted his misjudgment of a putt at about 10 feet. That opening round, he believed that he could play the first nine better than his opponent and that he would win the match.

Egan, however, improved his stroke golf by three on the outward journey and added two more holes to his lead. Ford had won the third and fifth and the seventh hole, but Egan had won the eighth. It was a marvelous side-hill putt at the second for a 4 and the halving of the round with the green.

shot of the week that made him 7 up at the three-quarter pole.

At the ninth, the Seattle player played his best three consecutive shots of the whole tournament, leaving himself a ten-foot putt for a 4. Egan was thirty feet from the cup with his third and overputted six feet. Ford tried hard to drop his ball in the but overran six inches, laying his opponent a half stroke, which he had to get on the lower side. No putt was ever better directed or better timed. It just flopped in with its last quarter revolution. The hole was saved.

Ford Sinks Long Putt.
But for that putt, a narrower margin of victory would have been his, for Ford ran down a long putt for a 3 at the tenth, after Egan's drive was to the edge of the green. He was in breath of life for the Seattle youth, and it was prolonged when he obtained a half in 3 at the eleventh green after a beautiful roll out from under the trees with his second.

The match was down and 7 to play, but the cards were stacked against him on the short hole. He shot into the woods, was badly out and then went into the bushes again with his approach, when his opponent was six feet away with his second. The match was over, with the warm handshake of the principals.

Morning round:
Egan 6 6 4 3 3 5 4 6-42
Ford 5 4 5 5 3 4 4 6-41

Afternoon round:
Egan 4 5 5 4 3 4 4 5-39
Ford 5 4 5 4 3 4 6 5-42

M'BRIDE MAY BE CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

By M. M. MATTHEWS.

Friends of former Gov. Henry McBride believe that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, instead of running for the senatorial nomination. Nobody has been given authority to make this announcement for the former governor, but the story appears to be well substantiated that he will yield to pressure from his friends throughout the state to drop the senatorial contest and go into the gubernatorial race.

It is well known fact that Governor McBride's name has been put in to the Senate some day. He made this fact public in 1912 when he declared that he favored the presidential candidacy of Colonel Roosevelt, he still regarded himself as a Republican.

He also asserted his belief that the breach would heal quickly and that the Republicans would be amalgamated before the campaign of 1916. He reasserted this belief in his speech as chairman of the King County Republican convention in 1914.

May Yield to Wishes of Friends.
If Governor McBride should make the Republican fight he will go into the contest because of pressure from friends throughout the state. Practically all of the so-called progressive legislation that has been enacted during recent years sprang from Governor McBride's near-controversial chairmanship of the state.

His bitter controversy with the lobbyists of the early statehood days is historic and will be remembered for generations to come. It is directly traceable to this fight. Subsequently the Governor's conduct of a railroad commission was too popular to be opposed any longer and not only gave up this fight, but also withdrew the notorious lobby against the Governor McBride waged his fight.

Because of his stubborn fight against the Olympia lobby, Governor McBride always has retained the political support of the Eastern Washington people who were demanding anti-railroad legislation during early days.

Would Be Powerful Candidate.
It is believed in political circles that he still retains this support. If he does, he would be a formidable competitor against the Senator of Cheney and former Lieut.-Gov. M. E. Hay of Spokane, who are regarded as probable entries in the Republican gubernatorial race.

It is too early to foretell the effect of McBride's entrance into the race upon the candidacy of James McNeely of Tacoma, but McNeely is a former supporter of Governor Cheney and undoubtedly expects to draw support from the same sources that would have been counted upon to support McBride.

It is reasonably certain John E. Frost of Seattle will stay in the fight, but George A. Low, who wants to make the race if Hay drops out, might not enter it. Roland H. Hartley of Everett and John C. Lewis of Aberdeen are avowed candidates, though the latter has not been active during the past few months.

Helped Themselves.
"Why did you cut out your hot soda department, with all those huge bouillabouilles and wafers and olives?" "Too many people," explained the druggist, "seemed to think the stuff was free lunch."

WAGERS $100,000 ON GAME OF GOLF

Charles H. Geist to Endow Chair of Surgery if He Loses, Opponent to Forfeit $1,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Saturday, June 26.—Charles H. Geist, a wealthy gas man of this city, who paid $250,000 for the construction of the Seaview Golf Club's links at Seaview, N. J., wagered $100,000 to $1,000 that he can defeat Dr. Edward Martin, a member of the surgical staff of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, at a game of golf. The game is to be played in the fall, after each has had time to practice.

According to the terms of the wager, Mr. Geist agrees, if he is defeated, to donate $100,000 to endow a chair of surgical research in the University Medical School, the money to be paid into the treasury of the university before January 1, 1916.

If Mr. Geist wins, Dr. Martin is to buy ten shares of the Seaview Golf Club's stock at $100 a share.

Saved.

THIS FELLOW'S LIFE WORTH FIFTY CENTS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Saturday, June 26.—Dr. Charles H. Bacon, of Attleboro, received a tip of 50 cents from a man who had been in a boat, a terrible trouble, rescued from drowning in Lake Pearl. The name of the man was not known. Dr. Bacon was camping on an island in the lake when he heard cries for help. Securing a rowboat he finally succeeded in saving the man's life.

To his surprise, the rescued man dug a half a dollar out of his pocket and offered it to his rescuer. Dr. Bacon took it, thinking at first it was a joke, but the stranger was so serious about it that the doctor will have it framed for a souvenir as his smallest fee for "saving a man's life."

LOSES HEIRLOOM

As the result of a fall on the waterfront near the Colman Dock last night, Mrs. Margaret Delian, of the women's protective division of the police department, lost a handsome cameo pin, which had come down to her through several generations of her family. Mrs. Delian stumbled over a box, falling heavily. She was uninjured, but on regaining her feet discovered that the ornament was missing.

WHAT $100 WILL DO.

If you act quickly, you have the choice of four fine dependable upright pianos in walnut, oak or mahogany cases, used of course, but good, and fully warranted, for $100 each. So good are these snaps that they are bound to go Monday or Tuesday at the latest. Remember, these are in every way desirable pianos, and you positively cannot afford to let this opportunity pass.
