PURSEY WINS NORTHWEST OPEN TITLE

MILIUS GIVES OAKS THREE HITS

DELANEY LOSES SECOND DUEL OF WEEK TO HURLER

Big Serbian-Allows but One Man, Bratcher, to Reach Second; Pel Ballinger Scores Lone Run of Game.

Special to The Times.
AKLAND, Saturday, June 18.—Art Delaney, Oakland pitcher, is having his toughest day of the week, but he is hoping that some day he will be pitted against a pitcher who will be easy pickings for his teammates.

For the second time this week Delaney was called upon this afternoon to oppose John Milius of the Seattle Indians on the mound, and the Oakland flinger lost his second duel to the Indian hurler, who baffled the Oaks and held them to only three hits. The locals were almost helpless before the hooks and teasers of Milius, who allowed only one Oak to get as far as second and third bases.

Bratcher Reaches Third.
The lucky one was Joe Bratcher, who cracked out a double to open the fifth inning. After being bunted to third by Caveney, he reached the last turn when Larry was walked and Boal hit to Brady for a double play via Sherlock to Hudgens.

The Indians did not put the winning marker over until the ninth inning, after one was away. Ballinger hit a long fly to right center and when Governor could not reach it, the ball rolled to the fence for a triple. After pitching three wide ones to Callaghan, Delaney put a couple over the plate and Callaghan hit the second one for a long sacrifice fly to Governor, scoring Ballinger.

That run proved too much for the Oaks, although Ray Brubaker, batting for Delaney, singled to right. The Oaks were not hitting Milius and it looked like they could have done themselves better by having Governor bunt the runner to second instead of trying to drive him around as there were no outs at the time.

Field Is High Class.
The fielding behind the pitchers was of high class and both teams put up errorless ball. Larry pulled Delaney out on several tight places by fielding slow rollers and tossing to first on the dead run.

Leonard Metz, Portland second sacker, who was pinch hit for Ray Brubaker, is expected to join the Oaks tomorrow. He will be used as utility, which means that Ray Brubaker, George Makin, will be released before the team goes north tomorrow night.

WISCONSIN BIDS HUSKIES TO TRY MENDOTA IN '28

Callow, Pleased With Condition of His Men, Would Accept.

By G. M. V.
MADISON, Wis., Saturday, June 18.—The University of Wisconsin liked its rowing party on Lake Mendota Saturday, liked it well enough to invite the Huskies to come back to Madison again next year.
George Little, athletic director of the University of Wisconsin under whose direction the program of athletic activities was arranged, this afternoon extended Coach Rusty Callow and his Washington crews an invitation to engage in another regatta with the Badgers next June on Lake Mendota to form a preliminary for the Huskies and Cardinal regatta. "That's a bit too far ahead," Coach Callow told Mr. Little, "but if Washington can arrange to do it and conditions are favorable I will favor a stop at Madison in 1928 on the way to the Poughkeepsie regatta. It is my personal opinion that the Washington crew gathered considerable good out of the stop—good from the standpoint of rowing and condition. I know we all had a wonderful visit and the regatta did much to weld the two great universities together in an athletic way."

Graduation Day Feature.
The Washington-Wisconsin regatta was one of the big factors of the graduation program at Madison and thousands of alumni of the institution witnessed the double victory of the Huskies over the Badgers.

After the regatta events today Coach Callow said that in his opinion the Husky oarsmen are in better condition than when they arrived here and probably the best conditioned outfit that he has ever taken to the Hudson River. The cool weather and good water on Lake Mendota have furnished ideal training conditions, and Washington's big squad left this afternoon for Poughkeepsie in condition to put in a hard week of training on the Hudson River, a stroke which is the last of the athletes showing overcondition tendencies.

Three New "W" Men.
Three new "W" crewmen were added to the double Washington win over the Badgers. Ed Fricke, who rowed three: Ronald Wailes, five, and Myron Scott coxed their letters in the varsity race. Fricke and Scott are four-year men while Wailes is a junior. Fricke has won two letters as a junior varsity oarsman but the race this morning was the first in intercollegiate competition of any kind for Scott and Wailes. Philbrick, who rowed the junior varsity, Runtz, who rowed the varsity, and Orr who coxed the varsity were four athletes who had never been in intercollegiate competition on water until today.

The Husky party of twenty-nine leaves here tomorrow morning for Poughkeepsie and is due there Monday at noon.

 Wimbledon Meet to Start ***
LaCoste Will Threaten Bill Tilden and Helen Wills Will Have Trio of Aces As Her Leading Foes.

By United Press.
LONDON, Saturday, June 18.—Miss Suzanne Lenglen for the first time in years, but nevertheless possessed of an entry list of men and women whose playing will provide thrills, the all-England Lawn Tennis Club at Wimbledon was ready today for its annual tournament, beginning Monday.
Rene La Coste, Jean Borotra and William T. Tilden probably will provide the high lights of men's singles play. Never before in the history of the club has there been such a strong foreign feminine element as in this year's entries.
La Coste and Tilden, if they meet, would lend an international climax to the tournament play. There are four women from as many countries whose meetings will arouse almost as much interest.
In about Susan, then an amateur, dominated opposition at Wimbledon. She met them all, or almost all.

VARSITY WINS HANDILY OVER BADGER EIGHT

Launches Break Swing of Vail's Frosh but Washington Jayvees Had Power to Control Race.

By GEORGE M. VARNELL
WASHINGTON, Saturday, June 18.—Never extended to its maximum speed, the University of Washington varsity crew flashed over the finish line of the Lake Mendota two-mile course this morning, three lengths in front of the University of Wisconsin eight in the major event of the Husky-Badger regatta in 10:51.1. The Wisconsin varsity trailed to finish in 11:12.

This was the second victory of the regatta for the Huskies as the Washington junior varsity eight defeated the University of Wisconsin freshman boat by almost two lengths in the preliminary contest. The time in this event was Washington, 11:11.2, and Wisconsin, 11:15.6.

Although rowed under ideal water conditions the races were slow. Two days ago the Husky varsity turned the same course in a time trial in 10:09, while the jayvee eight registered a 10:13 trip. Water conditions today were even better than for the trial trips. The Wisconsin freshman-Washington junior varsity race was interfered with by spectators' boats, motor craft that were driven too close to racing lanes and ahead of the shells.

They threw a wake into the course, which worked considerably to the disadvantage of the young Wisconsin crew, and not nearly so much against the Washington jayvee. The Huskies were on the inside of the course and the wash didn't reach Callow's boat with anything like the force that it hit the Wisconsin boat.

This threw the Badgers' out of swing for a time and at one stage of the race, about the mile point, Sperling, the freshman bow man, missed the water on two strokes when the big waves lifted the Wisconsin shell as they passed.

Course Later Patrolled.
This may have added to the Husky jayvee margin of victory, but it didn't affect the final outcome, for the Washington jayvee, when they picked up their beat in the final race, was well within a mile of the mark away with ease.

For the varsity race the course was patrolled and all power boats kept off behind the crews or at anchor so there was no repetition of the unfortunate circumstance which interfered with the first race.

Washington's long driving stroke did the business in the varsity race. Off together, the crews rowed a high stroke for the first minute, then Washington settled into a 25, while Wisconsin kept it up to 33. The shorter Wisconsin stroke didn't drive the Badger boat with the power of the Husky swing and at the quarter of a mile mark the Washington varsity had a quarter of a length lead and had cut down to 2:21 stroke. This lead was added to by a quarter of a length in the next quarter of a mile and the Washington stroke dropped to 20. Wisconsin's long stroke was held at 32, but open water appeared between the boats when the half-way point, the mile mark, was passed.

Stroke Dropped Twice.
Washington again dropped its beat, hitting only a 23 stroke during the early part of the second mile and for a minute or two before reaching the mile and one-quarter stroke the Husky stroke dropped as low as 25.

At that Wisconsin crept up slightly on the leader, but Myron Scott, the Husky star, called for more action and the stroke jumped to 30 and the Washington boat leaped ahead with the raise. One and a quarter miles of open water showed at the mile and one-half mark and from there the Huskies settled into racing again.

The stroke went to 32, and Jeff Burris, the Wisconsin stroke, raised the Badger beat to 34 in an effort to hold the faster pace. But this move failed to cut into the Husky lead.
At the one and three-quarter mile mark the Husky stroke was 27, while the Wisconsin stroke was 33. (Continued on Page 4, Column 7.)
