Everybody Isn't Broke From the look of joy on Nate Druxman's face; it appears as though this show will come close to a new high HIT BALL HARD for Seattle boxing gates.

Delving into the records, it seems that the two benefit programs which old Doc Brougham headed are right up in the front rank for big gates. The card for the kiddies of the unemployed, of which Druxman was the promoter, and the writer a sort of general nuisance, heads the list, with the Goodwill benefit program third. Here are the figures on the all-time record boxing crowds:

They would hardly be classed as fights.

But the profits from tonight's show will keep the four little Druxmans in shoes through the winter.
